

An aerial photograph of a golf course. On the left side, there is a large, multi-story building with a light-colored facade. The golf course itself is a vast green field with several sand traps (bunkers) scattered across it. A winding path or fairway cuts through the grass. In the background, a dense line of trees separates the golf course from a city skyline, which is visible in the distance under a hazy sky.

Starting Bid $100.00

Donated by Party Supply

Everything about this item. Everything about this item. Everything about this item. Everything about this item. Everything about this item. Everything about this item. Everything about this item.

Everything about this item. Everything about this item. Everything about this item. Everything about this item. Everything about this item. Everything about this item. Everything about this item.

